No M.I. 873 dated 6.2.1932.

Requests to be informed whether vacancies which have not been filled up according to recent orders should be removed from the Vacancy Register.

The following procedure may perhaps be intimated to be adopted.

(2) In cases, where vacancies that occurred subsequent to the vacancies that have been kept unfilled, have not yet been registered in the Vacancy Register and classified into General and Special vacancies, the unfilled up vacancies may be removed from the Vacancy Register and may subsequently be registered for purposes of classification, when the necessity to fill them up arises

(2) In other cases, entries made in the Vacancy Register may be retained and on a future occasion, when the necessity arises to fill them up, they should be advertised according to the classification already made without registering them once again in the Vacancy Register at the time of advertisement.

(4) Submit with a draft for orders.

Hons 27/2/32.

(1) In the list of the Recent cases of the Kind Mentioned there have been cited not to cancel the entries made in the Vacancy Register. These cases may be filed up.

6) The present proposal originated from one of the two cases referred to Vide Dept No 1228/31. The file relating to the other case is linked hereto.

7) The question for consideration is whether the vacancies which have not been filled up according to recent orders of Government in connection with retrenchments should be removed from the Vacancy Register or not.

7) In this matter contrary instructions appear to have been issued at present.

In two of the cases the officers concerned have been told that the entries already made in the Vacancy Register should remain as they are and when necessity arises in future to fill them up they should not be registered once again but should be advertised according to the present classification and disposed of according to rules.

In an other similar case the officer concerned has been told that the entries in the register should be cancelled and the vacancy may be brought on the register again when necessity arises to fill it up, and in another case similar instructions are proposed to be issued.

8) There appears to be no need to make a distinction between the vacancies that have already been brought on the register and those that have not yet been registered as under para 14 (e) and (f) of the Central Recruitment Board Manual all vacancies are to be registered immediately after the receipt of the report of vacancies whether they are eventually to be filled up or not according to the orders of Government in connection with retrenchments.

9) There is no purpose served by cancelling the entries once made in the register and renewing them at a later date when vacancies have to be filled up.

10) It therefore seems simpler to retain the entries already made in the register and fill up the vacancies after advertisement when necessity arises.

11) To avoid possible mistakes and unnecessary correspondence in this matter all the Unit officers will, if approved, be informed accordingly.
